

Grade	Pieces for Writing Folder	Examples of Write to Learn	Examples of Write to Demonstrate Learning	Examples of Write to Publish	Handwriting
K	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Reflective - Informative/Explanatory - Personal - On-Demand (Informative/Explanatory is formally Transactive)	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Learning Log - Learning Journal - Traveling Log - Content Area Log - Dialogue Journal - Double-Entry/Split Page Journal - Reading Response Journal - Writer's Notebook - Entrance/Exit Slips - Journal with prompt given 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Answers to Open Response Prompts - Answers to test questions - Summaries of reading or an activity - Explanation of a process or content - Oral Reports or Retellings - Research papers - Lab reports - Test Essays 	Reflective: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Letter to incoming student (Opinion) Informative/Explanatory: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - How-To - Letter (Informative/Explanatory is formally Transactive) On-Demand: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Letter to Santa - Letter to Veterans 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Able to use good posture - Able to slant paper away from dominant hand - Has established hand dominance - Uses a mature writing tool grasp; controls tool with the thumb side of the hand - Emerging ability to distinguish left, right, top and bottom in relation to paper - Coloring within lines - Able to copy capital and lowercase letters and numbers correctly forming top to bottom with direct instruction - Reversals may occur - Able to copy simple words from board - Emerging ability to contain writing within lines; use spacing (still crowds at the end of the lines) and size appropriately